Before the windy days of March are over the toddlers will be enjoying the thrill of flying a kite - even if it is just pretend. How would it feel to fly up in the clouds and get blown around by the wind? We will go outside as often as the weather permits. When we are in the room we will make our own toddler size kites to soar on the walls and spark the imagination.

Books we will read:
The Flyaway Kite
Four Season Spring
Parade
Hamilton Duck's Springtime Story
Green Eyes

Songs and Finger Plays
Let's Go Fly A Kite
Rain
Butterfly Song
Baby Bumblebee
The Bugs in the Air

*Memo to Parents

The Toddlers will play outside as often as possible now that the weather is nice. They so enjoy running off their stored up energy. The older children (3 years and up) play games with a teacher daily. These include matching pictures of objects, memory games, and listening to a tape and identifying the sounds they hear. The older children are ready for these preschool-type activities and are excited to participate in them.

Thanks,
Du Rell, Laura, Corey, and Erin