Dog-eat-dog mystery at the Lied

Winter play offers fun and more fun during finals week

Who did it? Where did they do it? And what did they do it with?

"The Real Inspector Hound," playing at the Lied Education Center for the Arts, is a short one-act play written by Tom Stoppard. It is about two theater critics who get mixed up in the mystery they are watching.

"It is funny and entertaining without sacrificing its intelligence and complexity," said Jeanne Tiehen, Arts and Sciences junior, who plays Mrs. Drudge.

The play's director, Dr. Bill Hutson, actors and crew have been practicing four times a week since Fall Break to make this a good performance.

"Everyone has worked really hard, and I feel the show deserves to be seen by the Creighton community," said Anna Kurtz, Arts & Sciences sophomore, who plays Cynthia.

"Our reward is having people come and enjoy the show," Tiehen said.

"It is high quality entertainment, and it costs less than going to a movie," Kurtz said, "and we speak in British accents."

Tiehen and Kurtz suggest everyone go see the play as a nice break from studying for finals. They also want to point out that, at a little over an hour, it is not a huge time commitment.

Come find out "who done it" Dec. 2-4 and Dec. 9-11 at 7:30 p.m. with a Sunday matinee on Dec. 5 at 2 p.m. The play is being performed in the Studio Theater of the Lied Education Center for the Arts.

Tickets are being sold at a discount price of $5 to students, faculty and staff. Tickets are available for reservation at (402) 546-1448. They will be sold at the Skutt Student Center fireplace Nov. 29 through Dec. 3 over the lunch hour. If any tickets remain, they will be sold at the door.
