Art faculty to display works

The university art gallery, located in the Fine Arts Building, will sponsor an exhibit of faculty art Wednesday through Nov. 26.

Alan Garfield, gallery director, said the majority of the works represent 20th century trends.

"The works are similar to abstract expressionism in their use of bold color and graphics," Garfield said. "They are fantasy expressions, rather than painting of people."

The exhibit, which represents the work of nine faculty members, includes drawings, paintings, ceramics, photographs, sculptures, prints and etchings.

Garfield said the exhibit will not only provide faculty with an avenue of expression, but will also give students an opportunity to see which teachers they might like to study under.

"Through the exhibit, students can see the variety of approaches available to them and learn to speak their own language, as artists," he said.

"This recent work by each faculty member proves they are professionals—that they have not forgotten art just to teach it. These works are their answer to research."

Wine and cheese will be served during the exhibit opening which will be held Nov. 2 from 8 to 10 p.m. The exhibit will be free and open to the public. The gallery is open Monday thru Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, noon to 4 p.m.

Works will be exhibited by Robert Bosco, assistant professor; James Butkus, lecturer; the Rev. Donald Doll, S.J., department chairman; the Rev. Jonathan Haschka, S.J., lecturer; Jerome Horning, assistant professor; Richard Janda, lecturer and photographer for the Omaha World-Herald; the Rev. Leland Lubbers, S.J., associate professor; John Thein, assistant professor and Garfield, gallery director.
