Dancers set to perform

By Anne McFarland

The Student Dance Concert will take place April 25 and 26 in the Performing Arts Center.

The performance will be given by all of the 30 or so students enrolled in the dance classes.

About a third of the program will be performed by Linda Wleczorek. The performance is her thesis for her bachelor’s degree in fine arts.

Tom McCleerey, arts senior, will perform two pieces as part of his bachelor’s degree in arts thesis.

One piece will also be performed by Julie Gilligan, arts junior.

The dance classes will perform the remainder of the show.

The program will include ballet, modern improvisation, jazz and character pieces. There will also be a modern work choreographed by the students, said Jill Lile, assistant professor of performing arts.

Lile said practice for the show began around the middle of the semester.

She added that she “wants everyone to come watch their friends.”

Admission is free.
