Play changed

“The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds” will be the campus’ next production at the Performing Arts Center.

Auditions were held earlier this week for the play, which will be performed April 17-20. Alan Klem, an instructor in the fine and performing arts department, will direct the play, which has a five-woman cast.

“The Effect of Gamma Rays” was a late replacement for “What the Butler Saw,” a move made in part to allow women on campus the opportunity to appear in some more substantial roles.
