Gallery displays Omaha art

Julie Danaher
Reporter

The paintings of Ronald Lee Reisdorff, an Omaha artist, are on display in the Fine Arts Building.

Dana Collins, publicity coordinator for Creighton's Fine Arts Department, said Reisdorff's paintings are "very appropriate for commercial buildings. He is best known for his surrealist style."

Reisdorff graduated from UNO in 1976 with a bachelor's of Fine Arts and attended the Cranbrook Art Academy in Bloomington Hills, Mich.

Reisdorff's paintings have been shown at the 1987 Biennial at the Sioux City Art Center, the 1986 Joslyn Biennial, where he was a merit award winner, and at a public art exhibit "Dreams and Realities."

In 1980, Reisdorff assisted with the restoration of the Douglas County Courthouse dome.