Christmas concert set for Sunday

Creighton will open the winter holiday season with its annual Christmas Concert Sunday at 7 p.m. in St. John's Church.

The concert is free and open to the public.

The evening will include several selections performed by the University Chorus, a group of nearly 30 student singers, within a setting of lessons and carols.

The program will offer the holiday spirit from many lands and ages, including a 13th century plainsong, a medieval German piece, an old English carol and a traditional French song.

Directing the chorus will be Dr. Marilyn Kielniaez, organ and chorus instructor.