

The Psychology Department invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position to begin August 2012. Candidates from applied areas of psychology (e.g., school, educational, clinical, counseling) are particularly encouraged. Job requirements include: completion of Ph.D. by August 2012, demonstrated excellence in teaching, an active research program to which undergraduates could contribute, and a willingness to teach 3 courses per semester at the undergraduate level. Candidates should have a demonstrated interest in teaching Research Methods-Statistics, Introduction to Psychology, and courses in their specialty area. Other duties include supervising undergraduate research/honors projects, academic service, and advising.

Please submit cover letter of application, CV, a statement of teaching interests, and a statement of research interests via the Creighton Human Resources Portal: <https://careers.creighton.edu>. Additional materials (e.g., reference letters, teaching evaluations, and official transcripts) should be made available, upon request. Submissions received by December 15th, 2011 will be reviewed. Please send questions to Maya M. Khanna (mayakhanna@creighton.edu or 402.280.3452).
