

MS Health Care Ethics (MHE)

Program Goals

At the completion of their graduate program, the student will be able to:

1. Understand the complexities of the myriad ethical problems and controversies in today's health care environment, especially those concerning vulnerable populations.
2. Apply ethical principles and theories to problems and issues in health care and provide justification for a particular course of action in response.
3. Facilitate open discussion among diverse individuals in ethically complex situations.
4. Design educational tools and policies to improve the ethical quality of health care.
