The Creighton Global Initiative seeks to animate, enrich and embrace an intentional global focus for the University community.

The Creighton Global Initiative will build upon current academic and institutional efforts and creatively envision and implement new ones.
In the 16th century, St. Ignatius Loyola propelled the Jesuit Order to unprecedented international outreach, particularly in the work of education.

In recent years, the Superiors General of the Society of Jesus have reminded Jesuit educators of their responsibility to inspire students to reach beyond their boundaries in order to fulfill their potential.
The Rev. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, S.J., articulated the fundamental mission of Jesuit higher education as the service of faith and the promotion of justice, and he encouraged Jesuit colleges and universities to know and engage the uncomfortable realities of the world.

Recently, the Rev. Adolfo Nicolás, S.J., has challenged Jesuit higher education to network more creatively and substantively.
Creighton University will strengthen the ideals of global citizenship by forming international relationships, engaging worldly crises, and building a better world.
A global citizen is someone who identifies with being part of an emerging world community and whose actions contribute to building this community’s values and practices.
