

Reinert-Alumni Memorial Library

Reference and Instructional Services Librarian

Creighton University seeks a creative, collaborative, and energetic Reference Librarian to coordinate instructional services. This position provides general reference service, with subject specialization in designated social science areas. Responsibilities include student consultations, faculty liaison, classroom teaching, online course instruction, and some collection development.

This position leads the ongoing development and implementation of information literacy programming for students in the College of Arts & Sciences and the Heider College of Business. The ideal candidate will effectively collaborate with library colleagues, teaching faculty, and instructional designers in the planning, delivery, and assessment of critical thinking instruction in the University's new core curriculum. This position reports to the Head of Reference and includes some nights and weekends.

Minimum Qualifications

- Master's degree from an ALA-accredited program
- Significant undergraduate coursework in the social sciences
- 2-3 years of experience providing reference and instructional services in an academic library
- Knowledge of information literacy and assessment standards, trends, and best practices
- Demonstrated ability to create tutorials, learning objects, surveys, and other curricular resources using appropriate instructional technologies
- Effective interpersonal, verbal, and written communication skills
- Effective presentation skills
- Strong public service orientation

Preferred Qualifications

- Bachelor's degree in anthropology, communication studies, history, sociology, or political science
- Teaching experience and demonstrated proficiency with learning outcomes assessment
- Experience with LibGuides and HTML code
- Proficiency with screencasting software such as Captivate or Camtasia
- Familiarity with learning management systems such as Canvas or Angel
- Familiarity with content curation in the social sciences, including datasets
