What Does A Social Worker Make?...

Social Work Program

The Senior Field Practicum provides the footprint for students in the social work field to do as St. Ignatius asked "go and set the world on fire."

A Jesuit education is marked by the student's capacity for contemplation in action, care of the whole person, and being with and for others. Through the Jesuit tradition students are prepared for social work practice by guiding their development from student to professional through the collective efforts of the Social Work Program, Community Agencies, Alumni, the Student and the University.
